TUESDAY, MAY 29, 1923.

The New York Evening Post claims to be out of debt. Wake it to be serious.

MARK TWAIN says there is something fascinating about science. One gets such wholesome returns of conjecture out of such a trifling investment of fact.

It is complained in New York that these who sign calls for temperance meetings do not attend themselves. Not so with the boys; they are usually on hand.

MR. PULITZER, of the new New York World, is relied upon to dismember faction and put the Democratic party through, as a party, in the coming scramble.

SENATOR MAHONEY juggled a colored waiter upon the charge of stealing $50 from him. He had no grounds, and pretended to none, excepting the popular notion that every colored man in humble life is a born thief. The boss will stand steady when he is still to run the State of Virginia.

WHILE the farmers of California are harvesting wheat the farmers of the Northwest are putting it in the ground. Meantime the papers are figuring on the crop, and if they are a hundred millions of bushels or so wrong, it is put down to "shortage," if on that side, and hurts neither the farmers or the papers.

LAND frauds are discovered without much difficulty in almost every part of the newly settled regions of the West. The Interior Department has decided that several of the land thieves of Colorado, who fraudulently pre-empted land for the purpose of forming a large ranch to be used by a wealthy cattle-drover, must be prosecuted. The land office had abundant information about the work of the land robbers in Colorado more than one year ago. Why these proceedings which are to affect only one small group of the thieves, were not begun at an earlier day does not appear.

THE Irish party in America talk of ignoring the Pope's circular in respect to the Irish question; threaten to boycott him, and declare that it will have no effect upon the people of Ireland. This is either empty bravado or deplorable ignorance. Those who are acquainted with Ireland and her people know well that the Pope has no firmer or more bigoted adherents than the Irish people. The very character of his office, which is the key-stone of the religion they believe and practice, makes the denunciation of the rebellion of the utmost importance, and it will have the effect of depriving the Land League and other kindred societies of its best friends. The influence is rightly used, for persistence in an open rebellious course, with the dynamic adjunct, can never accomplish any permanent good for Erin.

THE CAAR'S CORONATION.

We have repeatedly said that there is nothing like the stomach as a foundation for grand occasions. If we are going to make a celebration let us give it the quality of festivity, the skill and elements of gastronomy, the art and science of good eating. What are grand ceremonies in parks, what street parades, the busy fandango, the crowded processions, military plume, and official regalia, when there is no stomach at the bottom of it? It is never to be neglected nor forgotten that hunger is perpetual and remittent, that men are always prepared to eat and drink. It is a mistake to suppose that mind is not in harmony with these principles. The mind lays itself out mostly on appetite. We may assign the mental factor to a particular hemisphere, but he operates at will, and usually manifests at the base of the brain.

The great success of the Caar on Sunday in achieving the coronation, therefore, and starting life as an Emperor, is strictly according to natural principles. Appetite in which slumber the horrible rite and fearful orgie of disorder, has been placated. It gave itself submissively into the keeping of royalty, and never was more docile or the elements of discord more quieted into rest. These are reflections that will climb into permanence in the royal mind, and we believe his Majesty Alexander III. will be a wiser and better monarch for the good will he has propitiated and the dangers he has escaped. As a triumphal civic demonstration it was as successful as could be desired, and nothing is necessary at the hands of the Emperor but to open his new set of books on the system which, as Caar, he has so much cause to approve.

When we look with our sober senses all in their places at the vision of the C crown, we read in it an admonition which the Emperor may not safely disregard. He simply bowed to his subjects with the respectful homage of a sovereign. But in doing this he recognized the popular existence of a power he fears and dares not defy. This is not Nihilism. It was not Nihilism that gave the potentate imperial sway in Moscow Sunday. Nihilism would have broken from its secret places and destroyed him if it could. It was that mighty gathering of the conservative forces of a people that were mastered by means of the agencies he used and bore him triumphantly out of the reach of the Nihilists and wrapt him safely in the consummation he sought. The Emperor crowned and throned will recognize this power. It does not exist in Moscow only, but throughout the Empire.

No radical society can maintain itself against a conservative element of so much strength if the two antagonize. If the Emperor can awaken, as he may, the sympathies of the people by continuing to propitiate the natural stomach on more secure base he will bring himself into alliance with the conservatives who eat and drink. If he does not they will eventually ally themselves with the socialistic element and destroy the imperial government and the dynasty of its sovereigns. It would be a curious matter of research to forecast the Nihilistic future. It has lost nothing, none of its life and vigor, its energies and its purposes remain, it is not disconcerted by any arts or discouraged by any reverses. If the attitude of the imperial majesty displays no new significance it will resume its office. What Russia wants is a constitutional government, a government of law and order, an end of despotism, of imperialism, of the one man power. Beyond lie a representative government, a republic; she will have one or the other.

SINGERS UNITED.

Billy West Gets Mashed on Fay Templeton and Marries Her.

Billy West, of Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels, has been united in matrimony with Miss Fay Templeton, well-known as a comic opera singer. Billy was clean gone on Fay, and when he saw her reclining on the breast of Pippo, singing the "Gobble, Gobble" duet, it made him wild to play Pippo in private. An introduction to the sprightly little lady was secured and an invitation to attend the minstrel performance was tendered and accepted. Of course, Billy dressed for the occasion with extra neatness and fairly outdid himself in his song and dance. Fay looked with admiring eyes upon the fascinating outlines of her Romeo and applauded his gentle, graceful gyrations on heel and toe. The soft and mellow notes from his larynx stole into her heart and a mutual match, first-class in every particular, resulted, followed by a honeymoon of the electric light order. Billy's St. Louis friends wish he may never enter a divorce court. Billy has certainly got a mascot now.
